LONDON, SATURDAY, October 30, 1731. NUMB. LXXXI.

Some Remarks on the last Craftſman.

AS I have already prov'd, in a former Paper, that a Writer may defend the Government on all the Principles of Liberty and Independency, without the leaſt Invaſion of any Part of the Conſtitution, with all Tenderneſs to the People, and Regard to the Commonwealth in general; with all Good-Manners to his Adverſaries, and Honour to himſelf, I need not add any Thing more on that Head, tho' the Writers of the Craftſman make it part of their weekly Drudgery to render them ridiculous and contemptible, and would eternally provoke an eternal Vindication.——Their laſt Paper begins with ſeveral Perſonalities that had better been ſpar'd in a profeſs'd Specimen of general Controverſy, where they avowedly decline all future Indecencies of that Nature; but they have been ſo long bewilder'd in that Way, that they know not how to leave it, and, like thoſe People who romance till they believe their own Fables, promiſe a Reformation ſo heartily, that they really think it has taken Place.——But whoever waits for that Time will ſurvive the Authors of the Craftſman in vain; to expect they will diſarm themſelves of the Weapon they have moſt truſted to, and which has done them moſt Service, is, in my Opinion, as unreaſonable as to cavil at a Highway-Man's Piſtol, or diſmount him in a full Purſuit that he may overtake his Prey the ſooner.——The ſame pleaſant Gentlemen ſeem to be terribly nettled, when their Antagoniſts conſider them as defeated, as dying, or ſunk in a Lethargy that is hardly to be diſtinguiſh'd from Death itſelf; they ſeem to inſinuate that 'tis great Inſolence to make ſo free with Men of their Characters and Reputations, and that they are intitled to a quite different Behaviour.——Yet theſe very delicate Writers, in the ſame Period, think it no Preſumption to aſſert that their Obſervations prov'd of very great Service even to the State itſelf; that they had guided the Statesman too into the right Road, and, if he was capable to perſue it, chalk'd out every Step he was to take for the Time to come. This would be the ne plus ultra of all Aſſurance in any Body but Mr. D'Anvers, and his Auxiliaries; but, in them, 'tis but a becoming Boldneſs, a proper Conſciouſneſs of Merit, that Men of Genius are always intitled to.—But, were I to ſpeak my humble Sentiments about it, I ſhould think no private Perſon in Europe was juſtified by Modeſty, Reaſon, or Fact, to make any ſuch Aſſertion. I will not ſay 'tis impoſſible for Mr. D'Anvers himſelf to be guilty of greater Arrogance, becauſe no Body can venture to bound the Limits of his Capacity that Way; and 'tis not improbable but every Week may make ſome new Diſcovery. Perhaps what Mr. Dryden ſaid of Durfey may be applied to him; a Gentleman telling him that 'twas impoſſible to write worſe than Durfey's laſt Play, he replied then you don't know my Friend Tom's Genius; I'll engage that every new Performance of his ſhall be duller than the laſt.——In like Manner may the Craftſman proceed to diſtinguiſh himſelf till his Name become a Proverb, and every bare-fac'd Stroke of Vanity be thought peculiar to the Tribe of Caleb forever.——'Tis certain his laſt Paper is written with more Temper than uſual, and yet there is hardly a Paragraph in it that does not bear the Features of its Parent upon it; that does not abound with that Self-Complacency which gives a proud Man ſo much Pleaſure, and excites ſo much Ridicule in others.——If he has forborn his wonted Severities on Foreign Affairs, 'tis in Mercy to the Miniſtry, and their Advocates, not becauſe our Negotiations were either prudent or happy, but becauſe Mr. D'Anvers took pity on the Adminiſtration, and would not diſtreſs what he can never ſhare.——But, however, to remind them of his Power, and convince them this Receſs was only owing to his Lenity, he begins his ſage Remarks on the publick Tranſactions again, and, like Milton's Poem, hurries into the Midſt of Things at once, to prove himſelf of as much Importance as ever.——He hardly gives himſelf Time to affect a Concern for the Publick, ſo eager is he to do Honour to his own Character, and reaſſume the Cenſorſhip of Politicks which he has charitably diſcontinued ſo long: Nothing is more plain than that Mr. D'Anvers is the Hero of his own Story; for, if he is ſilent, even that Silence is meritorious; if not, 'tis ſtill his peculiar Honour to contradict himſelf with Reputation.——Nothing ſurely can be more remarkable than this Gentleman's Reaſonings about the two laſt Treaties of Vienna; for, when any one would have naturally expected ſome Criticiſms on the Articles that compos'd them, the laſt in particular, by an uncommon Fineneſs he refers to the Conſequences, and, while he would inſinuate an Odium on the Miniſtry, by that Means plainly demonſtrates they are calculated for national Advantage, if the Particulars he mentions are juſtly and obviouſly to be expected from them.——'Tis likewiſe as ſingular to hint at Grievances that are not in Being; for, by his Manner of introducing the Conſequences of that Treaty, any one would imagine that there would be ſome Difficulty in their taking Place: If there is, then is not Politicks ſo eaſy a Science as Mr. D'Anvers ſeems to imagine, and Events are not always to be ſecur'd even by the wiſeſt Meaſures: If not, 'tis meanly ungenerous to kindle a Jealouſy among the People of what is yet to come, or blame the Government with Misfortunes that are not; nay, if they ſhould happen, that they have done their utmoſt to prevent, or avoid.

In the ſame Manner has this profound Reaſoner mention'd the Acceſſion of the Dutch; that is to ſay, as a Matter of Difficulty and Uncertainty, and to be complied with only when they find their Intereſt in doing ſo: This is indeed a ſurprizing Diſcovery: I would fain know what Nation in Europe would accede to any Treaty, on any Terms, but thoſe of Intereſt.——All Nations, in all Treaties, have their Intereſt in View, and ought to agree to no one Article that was not manifeſtly founded on that Baſis, all Circumſtances and Situations conſider'd.——Now every Body knows what Deference the Dutch are oblig'd to pay to their French Neighbours, and, while the Craftſman himſelf ſuppoſes the Sentiments of his Chriſtian Majeſty, with Regard to the late Treaty of Vienna, ſo very dubious and irreſolute, ſurely the Caution of the Dutch is not to be wonder'd at, neither are the Meaſures of our Court a Jot the more defective for their Delay.——But, ſuppoſe they ſhould not accede for a Month or two longer, why then the general Tranquility would be ſo long fluctuating and uncertain, ſays Mr. D'Anvers, conſequently the Triumph of his Antagoniſts would be of ſhort Duration, and he would have the Satisfaction of inſulting the publick Misfortunes: A Point of more Importance to him than the Reſtoration of the Golden Age!——If we follow Mr. D'Anvers in his darling Purſuit of Circumſtances to diſtreſs the Miniſtry, we muſt make the whole Tour of Europe it ſeems; he has certainly a Genius for the Search of Miſchief, and 'tis not his Fault if his Succeſs is not equal to his Inclination: Tho' he will not inſiſt on the Concurrence of the Northern Crowns, he can't help an Excurſion on the Rumour of an Eaſt-India Company to be eſtabliſh'd among them, and that brings on a Digreſſion with ſeveral extraordinary Embelliſhments concerning ours.——What ſhall we ſay of a Man who will even go out of his Way to do little petty Injuries, that can anſwer no End in the World, but the Gratification of his own ill-natur'd Mind? Surely ſuch a Man is ſo little to be truſted, that he ought alway to be avoided as a common Enemy; and yet, ſuch has been the conſtant Practice of 'Squire D'Anvers, tho' he has impotently endeavour'd to give it another Turn, and impoſe himſelf on the Community as the honeſteſt and moſt benevolent Creature in it.——He is now return'd home, and modeſtly propoſes ſeveral Articles of Reformation in the State, which he expects will be complied with, that he may have the Pleaſure of boaſting that 'twas he pointed out the Way, and, without him, nothing great or honourable could take Place.——As to the Propoſal that concludes his Paper, I am fully perſuaded the Miniſtry would prevent the Poſſibility of a Conteſt about it, by removing the Occaſion, if it was not the Bait of Faction, to compaſs all the baſe and infamous Deſigns they have been ſo often diſappointed of every other Way.——I don't pretend to be in any Secret, but I am thoroughly convinc'd that whatever was proper to be done in the whole for the Good of the Common-wealth, would never meet with any Oppoſition from the Miniſtry, though their Enemies have ſet them ſo bad an Example.

Part of a Poem on the Spring: A Deſcription of Fiſhing.

NOW the ſwift Trout its ſlimy Hold forſakes,
And thro' the Flood a nimble Paſſage makes:
Now here, now there, in wild Meander's Plays;
Now ſpringing on its floating Booty preys,
And to the Light a twinkling Viſit pays.
Ye harmleſs Warriours of the Flood, prepare
Your Rods, your Tackle, and your ſilken Ware.
Let all the Stores you want, before you lie
In ſome ſmall Bag, your fiſhing Armoury:
And to the Field when ſmiling Skies invite
Prepare for all Varieties of Fight:
Leſt ſome huge Hulk, the Tyrant of the Brook,
Should break your Line, or ſnap your brittle Hook.
When down the Rivers frothy Bubbles flow,
And from the Bank the Landſcape ſhines below;
While from the Cloud th' emerging Sun appears,
And ev'ry Stream a lucid Glimmer wears;
The Fiſher leads his Line, with wary Skill,
Between the running Water and the ſtill;
Tempts on the ſhining Fly the Trout to ſtart,
Or fiercely at the trembling Bait to dart:
Till caught at laſt by the illuſive Snare,
It ſprings in vain from the retentive Hair.
He holds his Angle with a ſteady Hand,
And draws it dancing to the fatal Land.
But to the Trouting War how far unlike
Is the rough Tackle of the furious Pike!
His wild Career tenacious Cords muſt bound,
And wiry Chains his raging Teeth confound.
Or with their Edge his dying Cauſe he pleads,
And diſintangled plunges 'midſt the Reeds.
In thee, ſweet Tweed! and in thy ſilver Maze,
In ruddy Pomp the ſhining Salmon plays,
And ſets the Waters in a mimick Blaze.
See! how the Angler has him in the Toil,
And while he rages how the Waters boil.
How by the whirling Help of a Machine,
He now contracts, and now extends his Line;
Till the faint Creature can reſiſt no more,
And then he draws him panting to the Shore.
So the wild Courſer ſuffers with Diſdain
The clinging Rider, and the curbing Rein.
Blind with hot Youth, the duſty Fields he ſcours,
And in his Rage the ſwimming Earth devours.
Till the cloſe Rider his high Mettle cools;
And to the Hardſhip of the Bridle ſchools.
Then with more Eaſe he bounds along the Plain,
And ſoft and calmly paces home again.

HELI (the Turkiſh Traveller) to the Baſhaw of Babylon; on Dying at the Grand Seignior's Command.

'TIS rumour'd among the Nazarenes that thou haſt not only refus'd to ſubmit to the Bow-String, at the Command of his ſublime Highneſs, but haſt employ'd it thyſelf to ſtrangle his Meſſengers.——Such Behaviour is certainly without a Precedent among the Muſſulmans, and thou haſt begun it too ſoon; thou haſt violated the moſt ſacred Precepts of our holy Prophets, and haſt reduc'd thyſelf to the Level of Infidels: Thou haſt prov'd thyſelf unworthy of the Honour that was deſign'd thee.——To be diſtinguiſh'd from thy Tribe with Power and Titles, and intruſted with a Ray of the Ottoman Majeſty, was, without Diſpute, greatly to thy Glory; but to die, as thou hadſt liv'd, in Obedience and Fidelity, would have advanc'd thee to the higheſt Pitch of Heroiſm, and intitled thee to the moſt divine Retreats in Paradiſe.——But thou haſt infamouſly neglected the golden Opportunity, and forfeited the nobleſt Claim of Bleſſedneſs thy Stars deſign'd thee. 'Tis in vain to excuſe thyſelf, by ſaying 'twould be more for thy great Maſter's Intereſt and Reputation, that thou ſhouldſt die in the Field fighting in his Service; 'twas Preſumption in thee to think ſo, as an Inſinuation that thou art wiſer than he, and fitter to be Lord of thy own Actions; forgetting thou art his Slave, and art bound to ſubmit to his Nod; neither thy Life, nor thy Thoughts are thy own; they are properly and rightly his; thou canſt never ſerve him beyond thy Duty, or more importantly than in executing his Commands; 'twas the ſole End of thy Creation, and if thou demur thou art guilty of thy own Ruin.——I'll tell thee how Achmet Baſhaw of Aleppo behav'd on a like Occaſion, and I am perſuaded when thou readeſt his Story, thou wilt bluſh at thy own.——This faithful and accompliſh'd Slave had reſided many Years in that Poſt, and, by the Exactneſs of his Conduct, made himſelf a compleat Example of Honour and Integrity to all his Contemporaries.——His Temper was ſo ſweet that his Inferiors lov'd him, and his Heart ſo brave that his Enemies fear'd him; ſo honeſt that no Bribe could corrupt him, ſo humane that no Applications could weary him; ſo fond of his Country that he ſeem'd the Genius of its Safety, ſo courteous to Strangers that they eſteem'd him their Friend and Father; ſo true to his Prince that he was never known to diſobey him, ſo mild to thoſe he govern'd that he never was ſuſpected of an Injury.——He was the Delight of all who ſaw him, and the Admiration of all who were acquainted with his Name.——In this noble and upright Manner he executed his Charge for Years, and yearly added freſh Acquiſitions of Reverence and Honour to his Name.——He was particularly fond of the Engliſh Nation; he admir'd the Frankneſs, the Bravery, and Honesty of their Tempers, because it resembled his own; he lov'd to mingle with them in Converſation and make himſelf acquainted with their Cuſtoms; they, on the other Hand, admir'd his Condeſcenſion, and Impartiality, his Knowledge, and Munificence, and were never more happy than while they were honour'd with his Company. ——Once, when he entertain'd ſome of their Merchants at his Palace with his uſual Goodneſs and Hoſpitality, when they were moſt delighted with one another, a Meſſenger came from the Port; Achmet went aſide to receive the Commands that Power had made ſacred; which done, he returned to his Friends with as much Serenity and Compoſure as before, and rejoin'd the amicable Society.——As the Maxims of the Port are formidable to the Nazarenes, they expreſs'd ſome Uneaſineſs to know the Nature of the Meſſage he had juſt heard, which he artfully evaded, till their Concern for his Safety oblig'd him to reveal it.—— "My Friends, ſays he, for Fear it ſhould give you Pain, "I have deſir'd to be excus'd; but, with Regard to my- "ſelf, 'tis an Honour I ſhould be proud to boaſt of; my "Sovereign Lord diſmiſſes me from hence to Paradiſe, and "my Death will be the Seal of my Integrity: I have beg- "ged two or three Hours Reſpite in Complaiſance to you; "you are my Gueſts, and I could not part with you ab- "ruptly.——'Twould have been an Affront to your Merit, "and the Friendſhip I bear you, and while we yet live let "us be happy."——He ended with a Smile that breath'd nothing but Affection, and Reſignation; but ſudden Melancholy ſeiz'd his Gueſts, and damp'd at once all the Ideas that juſt before flutter'd round their Hearts; they look'd on him with a generous Pity, and were outrageous to loſe that Virtue which was an Ornament to humane Nature.—— At laſt one of them, breaking the ſolemn Silence, thus deliver'd the Sentiments of the reſt.——"My Lord, we look "upon your Intrepidity with Veneration, but we are loth "to ſee it treated ſo ill; your Virtue has won us to be in- "tereſted in your Fortunes, and anxious for your Safety: "We can't bear to ſee ſo brave a Man cut off in ſo ungrate- "ful a Manner, without offering our beſt Aſſiſtance to pre- "ſerve him.——We have now a Ship in the Port ready "for ſailing, let us be happy in protecting you; let us ſave "you from your Fate, and make our Countrymen ac- "quainted with that Merit, which ſets aſide the Difference "of Nation, and Religion, and enlinks all Men of Pro- "bity and Honour in an Union, that can never be diſ- "join'd."——Doſt thou imagine now he was baſe enough to accept of this Offer, or fly from the Doom that 'twas his higheſt Glory to ſubmit to? No, with an undaunted Courage, and a Heart full of Gratitude for the intended Favour, he thus replied.——"My Friends, I muſt own the Gal- "lantry of your Propoſal, at firſt, half diverted me from "my Principle; the Frailty of humane Nature crouded in "on my better Judgment, and, in Complaiſance to you, "I had like to have forgot myſelf.——But I am now re- "cover'd, and you yourſelves ſhall be oblig'd to confeſs my "Sentiments juſt.——You would, in Kindneſs to me, re- "prieve me from Death, which I know will one Day or "other be inevitable, and, to lengthen out a miſerable "precarious Life, you would have me fly from the Laws "of my Country, my Duty, and my Fame; what is there "in Life ſo tempting to induce me to make ſo great a Sa- "crifice? what is there in Death ſo dreadful that I ſhould "ruſh into ſo many inſeparable Misfortunes to avoid it? "If I live a few wretched Years longer, I am ſure to live "in Miſery; if I die now, I bow down to the Command "of my Sovereign, and make what is ſubject to Neceſſity an "Act of Honour.——In my Opinion, a brave Man ſhould "chuſe to be diſmiſs'd from Life, in a Manner becoming "his Character, and, when Opportunity offers, 'tis Cow- "ardice to decline it.—Beſide, what is it you offer to pur- "chaſe my Safety? The Peace, the Properties, and perhaps "the Lives of all your Countrymen in the Ottoman Domi- "nions: Thouſands will be ſacrific'd in Return for one, "and your whole Nation curſe me for being the Cauſe: "No, I can never accept of Life at the Expence of my "Benefactors, I can never ſuffer you to be miſerable for "my Sake; I have conſider'd Death in too familiar a "Light, I have ever expected it in the very Shape it ap- "pears in, and I ſhou'd be unworthy of your Friendſhip "or Favour, if I paus'd to meet it in any other.——Death "is the Conſequence of Life, and, as I receiv'd the Bene- "fit of the one without deſiring it, I'll ſubmit to the other "without repining at an imaginary Injury."——He ended as he began with a Dignity worthy of the Occaſion, and dying left the Infidels themſelves in Admiration of ſuch heroical Virtue.

Capt. Turner the ſaid 21ſt of Auguſt took his Departure from the Land of Florida, and on the 24th, at Eleven in the Forenoon, diſcovered a Wreck without any Maſts, upon which he ſent out his Long-Boat on board, and found that all her People had left her at Leiſure, had but few Goods on board, and well gutted; the Hold was full of Water within 18 Inches, and all her Pumps were broke off at the upper Deck. On the 25th, at Ten in the Morning, he ſaw the Admiral of the Galleons (whom he knew by his Flag, Capt. Turner having been at Porto Bello at the Time of the Galleons being there) and three other Ships, which he took to be Merchant Ships belonging to the Fleet, that they had loſt all their Maſts, but had got up Jury Maſts and Top-Maſts. Capt. Turner all this while kept out of the Reach of their Guns, and on the 25, about Six in the Evening, fill'd his Sails, and ſtood on his proper Courſe, with the Wind Weſterly till the 27. Bankrupts. Chriſtopher Potticary, late of the Town of Warminſter in the County of Wilts, Mercer and Maltſter. ——Edward Marſton, late of Wolverhampton in the County of Stafford, Chapman.

THURSDAY, October 28.

Yeſterday about Twelve at Noon the Lady of the Right Hon. Richard Earl of Burlington was brought to Bed of a Daughter, at his Lordſhip's Houſe at Chiſwick in Middleſex.

The ſame Day Numb. 28,571 came up at the Lottery at Guildhall a Prize of 1000l. Numb. 15,340 a Prize of 500l. and eight others of 100l. each.

On the 13th Inſtant George Robinſon, Eſq; embarked at Dover for Calais, as did Mr. John Thomſon, late Ware-houſe Keeper to the Charitable Corporation, and Mr. Martin O Connor, formerly Secretary to the Company of Mine Adventurers, at the ſame Time.

Early on Sunday Morning laſt, Timothy Gulley, Eſq; of Chiſwick, Capt. in the ſecond Regiment of Foot Guards, roſe up in his Bed, and being asked by his Wife what was the Matter, ſaid he was uneaſy; whereupon ſhe offered to fetch him any Thing, but he told her he would get it himſelf, and ſtep'd out of Bed, took up one of his Piſtols, which he clap'd near his Ear, and diſcharged it, firſt ſaying, God bew'th ye, Nanny. Surgeons were immediately ſent for, who found two Balls were lodged in the hinder Part of his Head, and they being difficult to extract, he bade them give him his Nut crackers, and he would take them out himſelf. He lived till Tueſday Morning.

Robberies, &c. On Tueſday Night about Eleven o'Clock, Francis Wilſon, Eſq; going thro' Chancery-Lane to Holborn, was ſet upon by a Street-Robber by the Dead-Wall, who took from him his Silver; but ſome Perſons coming by, he had the good Fortune to ſave his Watch and other Things of Value.——The ſame Evening Mr. Harding and another Gentleman going in a Hackney-Coach to Totteridge, were attacked by a ſingle Highwayman, within half a Mile of the Town, who took what Money they had, and then rode off; it is remarkable, that in the little Time he was taking his Booty, his Hands trembled prodigiouſly, and the Sweat run down his Face to that Degree, that it is believ'd with a little Reſiſtance he might have been taken, being, as is ſuppoſed, under an Apprehenſion he was purſu'd.——Yeſterday a Boy about twelve Years of Age was committed to New-Priſon, for cutting off a Woman's Pocket in St. John's-ſtreet laſt Tueſday Night.

Preferments. Yeſterday at a General Court of the Governors of St. Bartholomew's-Hoſpital, holden at Goldſmith's-Hall, Robert Gay, Eſq; Member of Parliament for the City of Bath, and formerly Surgeon of the ſaid Houſe, was unanimouſly choſen Treaſurer of the ſame, in the room of Samuel Palmer, Eſq; who has reſign'd.——Mr. Valentine Cummins is choſen Regiſter to the Corporation of Clergymens Sons.——Yeſterday, in the Court of King's-Bench, Bevill Filmer and Theodore Johnſon, Eſqs; were ſworn Keepers of the Writs and Records of that Court, a Place granted by the Lord Chief Juſtice, to hold to them and the Survivor of them for Life.——Dublin, Oct. 26. Yeſterday being Quarter Aſſembly Day, it was agreed by the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of this City, to preſent his Grace the Lord Lieutenant with his Freedom of this City in a Gold Box: And alſo to preſent the Right Hon. Walter Carey, Eſq; his Secretary, with his Freedom in a Silver Box.

Death. Dublin, Oct. 26. This Week died the Right Hon. Sir Guſtavus Hume, Bart. one of his Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy Council, and Knight of the Shire for the County of Fermanagh.

FRIDAY, October 29.

Yeſterday Numb. 60,835 was drawn a Prize of 1000l. which Ticket belongs to Mr. Abraham Goodwin, a Woolſtapler in Broad-ſtreet.

The ſame Day Mr. Alderman Child, Lord Mayor Elect, was ſworn at Guildhall into that high Office; and the late Lord Mayor deliver'd to him the Regalia of the City.

Yeſterday an antient Country Gentleman came to Mr. Marſhal's Shop in Ludgate-ſtreet to fit himſelf with a Pair of Spectacles, and putting his Hand in his Pocket, a Piſtol that was in it, ready charg'd and loaded, happen'd to go off, ſo that the Ball graz'd on his Thigh, and lodg'd in his Leg.

The ſame Day about One o'Clock their Majeſties, with the Duke and five Princeſſes, arrived at St. James's Palace from Hampton-Court.

On Sunday laſt the new-born Daughter of the Right Hon. the Earl of Pontefract, Maſter of the Horſe to her Majeſty, was baptized at his Houſe in Hanover-Square. His Grace the Duke of Richmond ſtood Godfather, the Lady Leimſter, and Sir John Evelyn's Lady Godmothers.

Robberies, &c. On Tueſday laſt about Six o'Clock in the Evening, Mr. Coltman, junior, of Southgate, going home in his Chariot, was ſtopt by two Highwaymen near Standford-Hill Turnpike. The Coachman not obſerving the Highwaymen's firſt Sign to ſtop, one of them ſhot off his Piſtol at the young Gentleman, which by Providence grazed only on his Arm. They robb'd him of two Guineas and his Sword.——Yeſterday a Man was committed to Newgate by Juſtice Blagny, charged on Oath with privately ſtealing out of a Dwelling Houſe, ſeveral Goods of great Value.——The ſame Morning Sir John Gonſon, and eight or nine more Juſtices of the Committee appointed at the Weſtminſter Seſſions, met at St. Anne's Veſtry, and examined ſeveral Vagabonds and other diſorderly Perſons, apprehended late the Night before by the Conſtables; and ſix of the moſt notorious of them were committed to Tothill-Fields Bridewell to hard Labour.

Preferments. His Grace the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury has been pleas'd to collate the Rev. Dean Lynch to the Sine Cure of Eynſford in Kent.——The Rev. Dr. Harwood, Rector of Littleton in Middleſex, has preſented his Son, the Rev. Mr. Harwood, Curate of Belſond, to the Rectory of Shepperton, vacant by the Death of the Rev. Dr. Atterbury.

Deaths. Laſt Wedneſday Morning died the Right Hon. Talbot Yelverton, Earl of Suſſex, at his Seat at Eaſton Maudit near Aſhby Boſs in Northamptonſhire. He was Deputy Earl Marſhal of England, (appointed by his Majeſty under his Grace the Duke of Norfolk) Knight of the moſt Hon. Order of the Bath, one of the Lords of his Majeſty's moſt Hon. Privy Council, and one of the Members of the Royal Society.——The ſame Night Mr. Raſhbourn, an eminent Tallow Chandler in Saliſbury-Court, who lately left off Trade, was taken with an Appoplectick-Fit, as he was drinking a Glaſs of Wine with ſome Friends at the Globe-Tavern in Fleet-ſtreet, and was carried home dead.
